

New Constitution Up For Vote At URGENT Society Meeting

91 Hopefuls Entered In Queen's Competition

The nominations for the Carnival Queen have been closed and the Preliminary Tea will be held today in the Common Room of RVC. Ninety-one hopefuls have been entered.

All candidates are asked to be present at the Tea to be interviewed briefly by five members of the Carnival executive.

Those with last names beginning with the letters A — L should come between 2 and 4 pm, those from M — Z between 4 and 6 pm.

The nominees selected to appear at the Final Queens' Tea on Monday, February 8 and Fashion Show which will take place at 4:15 pm following the Tea, will be informed by letter or telephone.

Today's Tea is an informal affair. Refreshments will be served, with members of the Scarlet Key acting as hosts.

A Students' Society open meeting is being held today at 1 pm in the Union Ballroom for the purpose of adopting a new constitution. The amendments which are being introduced to bring certain outmoded ideas in the constitution up to date are the result of four months of study this fall.

One of the major changes of the proposed constitution is a new conception of the Women's Union. Under the amendment the SEC will be the recipient of $3.50 per female student which was formerly under the jurisdiction of the Women's Union. Of this $3.50, the Council will allocate $1.50 as a guaranteed grant to the Women's Union and will retain $2 which will be used to increase the revenue available to activities sponsored by the Student's Society.

FEE INCREASE

The new constitution also calls for fee increases from students in the Faculty of Graduate Studies and Research in return for full membership in the Students' Society.

At present the graduate students are charged $7 per year, of which $5 goes to the Students' Society, $1 to a trust fund and $1 to the Post Graduates Society. Under the amendment graduates will be charged $10, the extra $3 going to Students' Society.

PRESIDENT'S COMMENT

In a statement issued to the Daily, Students' Society President Bryce Weir commented:

"The changes advocated have been arrived at from the deliberations of two successive Students' Executive Councils, a Students' Society Meeting, numerous consultations with the Women's Union Executive and a Faculty-Student Committee. This work has been going on over the past several months and it is now being presented to you for your consideration and approval. If the Constitution is passed by a quorum at the coming meeting, in which you are entitled to participate, we shall have succeeded in bringing about much needed changes in the structure of the organization to which we all belong."

RESTRICTION LIFTED

In addition to other changes with regard to women students, the restriction that only males may vote and run for the office of President of the Union and Vice-President of the Students' Society will be lifted.

This will mean that female students will now have equal opportunity to obtain any Students' Society post, removing the last vestiges of inequality in student affairs.

DAILY

A sub-amendment to the constitution will be introduced at the meeting by Roger Phillips, Editor-in-Chief of the Daily, on behalf of the Managing Board, regarding freedom of the press. The sub-amendment reads as follows:

"In the editorial columns of the McGill Daily, the managing board shall be free to express whatever opinion it holds save that no editorial shall treat of a religious or political question in a partisan way, or express or imply any but a neutral attitude in discussing any student election."

To pass an amendment or sub-amendment requires a two thirds vote, provided a quorum of 300 students are present.

Hoofing Along, Crowing Our Song... Side by Side?

Whatever the reader's opinion may be, this sextet is, in actuality, a group of Red and White Revuers. One of their major numbers, "The Galloping Gallup Poll" will be presented while they are situated in the audience.

Daily Will Be Closed

The McGill Daily offices will be closed today between 1 and 2 pm to allow members of the staff to attend the Students' Society meeting.

Publicity men are advised that they should transact any business with reference to Thursday's paper immediately after the meeting.

"Coming" notice deadline will be extended to 3 pm and clubs are requested to fill in the book either between noon and 1 pm or 2 and 3 pm.

The doors of the office will be locked between 1 and 2 pm, so there will be no use in coming down during this time.

University Model United Nations Commences This Afternoon At University Of Montreal

The second annual University Model United Nations will open tonight at the University of Montreal with 55 participants.

Founded and sponsored by McGill, U. of M., Sir George Williams College, and Loyola, the University Model United Nations will conduct most of its program this year in the U. of M. main auditorium.

Among the events there will be a Security Council debate on "The Creation of an International Permanent Peace Force" from 4 to 6 pm today and a General Assembly session on "The Admission of the People's Republic of China to the U.N." from 9 to 11:15 am tomorrow.

The General Assembly will also hear an address by guest speaker Hon. Lester B. Pearson tomorrow night at 7:30.

INTERPRETERS

At the University of Montreal the delegates will be permitted to speak in any of the major languages of the U.N. Simultaneous translation equipment will be used and all speeches will be translated into English and French by U. of M. student interpreters trained for the House of Commons in Ottawa.

All major panel discussions and study groups will be conducted at McGill on Thursday and Friday.

The purpose of these panel discussions is to ensure the delegates a detailed knowledge of major world problems which they may otherwise fail to gain in their formal role as representatives of the various member nations.

Dean Frost of the McGill Faculty of Divinity will chair the first panel discussion at 1 pm tomorrow in Redpath Hall. The topic will be "Overpopulation: Menace to World Peace?"

The panelists will include Professor Alistair McKinnon of the McGill Department of Philosophy, Mr. A. K. Mitra, first Secretary of the Indian Mission to the U.N., Professor McCollough of Sir George Williams College, and Reverend Father Norbert Lacoste, Professor of Sociology and Anthropology at U. of M.

Police Arrest Prowler In Women's Washroom

by BILL HERSH

The Currie Gym was the scene of a routine police capture yesterday morning. The arrested man was caught prowling about the building and was then turned over to police who put him behind bars in the city jail.

Reports of a man sneaking around the women's locker room door reached the Superintendent of the building, Mr. R. A. Johnston, yesterday morning. He proceeded upstairs to the corridor outside the women's washroom arriving just in time to nab the prowler coming out of that room.

The Montreal Police were immediately summoned and Detectives Lafortune and Marchand arrived on the scene.

SMALL MAN

The man was described as small, middle-aged, French speaking and wearing a mustache. On examining the suspect, a wallet belonging to a Neurological Institute doctor was found in his pocket. The wallet was immediately returned to its owner.

In an interview with the Daily, the physician declared that he would not press charges. He concluded that the wallet must have been taken from his coat while it hung in a room on one of the top floors of the hospital.

LARGE FAMILY

The trespasser told Harry Griffiths, Director of Athletics that he was the father of five children and out of work. Detectives questioned the man about the theft of a lady's handbag at the Gym several weeks ago.

The suspect whose name was not released, stated that he had never been in the building previously.

The only crime committed yesterday at the gym was trespassing and it is doubtful that McGill will file charges.

A Change For The Better

At 1 pm today a Students' Society meeting will be held to consider and vote upon some major constitutional changes. It has been many years since any serious overhaul of our constitution has been undertaken, as is well-demonstrated by its present archaic state.

But it is more than archaisms which you are called upon to change today. Two major proposals will be up for student consideration: a revamped financial arrangement with the Women's Union, and the entry of graduate students to the Society as full members, but at a reduced fee.

NEW DEAL

The new arrangement with the Women's Union is the result of much soul searching and many hours of committee work. Under the new plan the Women's Union retains its financial autonomy, but in a more limited sense. Instead of receiving $3.50 per woman student directly from the University, the Women's Union will be guaranteed what amounts to $1.50 per female by the Students' Society. Further funds may be given out by the S.E.C. if a budget is submitted through the usual channels, but the $1.50 will be automatic.

At first light it would seem the women will be done out of two dollars per person but this is not strictly true. In the past few years, a payment of one dollar per female has been made by the Women's Union to the S.E.C. towards the operation of the Students' Union. The effective reduction then is only one dollar, and results from a re-examination of the role of the Women's Union and female participation in the Students' Union. There is really nothing controversial about these changes, the Women's Union having already accepted them at a constitutional meeting last week.

GRADUATE CHANGE

The second change of major importance is that affecting graduate students. Presently they hold a unique position on campus. Ostensibly they are no different than, say, the med students. Both are preoccupied in their studies and do not precisely have the wish or the time to devote themselves to extra-curricular activities in any great degree. But medical students are full-fledged Students' Society members, and pay the full $15 fee. The graduate students pay only five dollars to the Students' Society to cover their share of the cost of the Union and the McGill "Daily" and hold no membership. Yet countless graduate students have held senior posts in such Students' Society activities as the Union, the "Daily", and the Debating Union. Every concert of such nature as SCOPE presentations, put on by the Students' Society, has reduced rates for students, upon presentation of a student card. This means that graduates can take advantage of Students' Society subsidization, although not actually pay for it indirectly as other students do. To top everything off, the "Daily" and the Union between them now cost about $8 per student, and with the one dollar Post-Graduates Society fee and a dollar per student for a trust fund which will be guaranteed the graduates, the new ten dollar fee is not exorbitant. In fact, ten dollars is a very good deal — graduates will get full voting rights and representation, pay only two-thirds of the Students' Society fee, receive the full benefits, if they so desire, of all Students' Society activities, and yet only pay for what they are now getting.

NARROW-MINDEDNESS

Unfortunately, the graduate students, or rather a few graduates, since most have not even bothered to express an opinion, have taken a very narrow minded, standpat, no-fee-raise point of view. It remains for the Students' Society to vote for these changes for what they are, a very fair deal. This will leave it up to the administration to decide, and we cannot imagine the University condoning a situation where certain students get something for nothing, to the detriment of the student body as a whole.

A Constitution...

Elsewhere on this page we print our analysis of the proposed new Students' Society constitution. The importance of the changes cannot be overemphasized. Far too long has the Society been operating on an archaic or an unconstitutional basis (where archaisms have been ignored). The changes will remove archaisms and bring the relationship between the Women's Union and the Society, and the post-graduates and the undergraduates, up to date.

But it would be wishful thinking to expect the constitution to pass itself. Quite often McGill students harbor the "Let George do it" attitude. Today, if they wish to have the new constitution passed they must turn out at least three hundred strong and approve it by a two-thirds vote in order that the proposal be considered by the University. Otherwise we shall be left with a constitution which leaves us in the horse and buggy days, and just another proof of the apathy of McGill students.

...and an Amendment

Although we feel that the new constitution is of utmost importance to the good management of McGill student activities there is another item of extremely vital nature to this campus. We refer to the proposed amendment which would guarantee the Daily freedom of expression in its editorial columns.

At first glance one might judge this a rather selfish aim on the part of this newspaper. But besides any benefit it would have for the Daily, the amendment cannot be considered by the student body as a whole in any but the most serious terms. At McGill we have experienced a long tradition of toleration of editorial freedom by the S.E.C. But past experience cannot predict or control the future — look what happened last November when it was thought that experience showed no need for a definite set of election rules for the Students' Society elections. True, written word, even in a constitution, is not everything, but it is a lot more than just an understanding.

But why should the student body care who controls the editorial policy of their campus newspaper? Simply because such free public expression is one of the best ways to ensure good campus government. Freedom of the press is not a new concept. Contrary to sin, every one's for it in principle. By putting this concept into practice, via a constitutional amendment, McGill would greatly enhance her prestige as a leader among the various Canadian college student bodies.

Freedom of expression in the Daily's editorial columns would not mean a license to libel or slander — there are laws against these things and it is a foregone conclusion that freedom of expression does not mean freedom to break the law.

The S.E.C. would by no means lose its ultimate control of the Daily, however. It will still ratify and thereby control appointments to the Daily's managing board. It will still maintain its previous control, except over the editorial columns. It will still retain financial control.

Briefly, then, the proposed change will merely legalize the present status quo re editorial freedom. It will enhance McGill's stature as a leader among campus governments, and will prevent, as far as possible, any future infringement of the freedom of the press. A vote against such an amendment would show that although we feel free to criticise others for not respecting freedom of the press, we are not prepared to accept such democratic enlightenment on our own campus.

Letters

New View On Athletics

Sir:

I certainly hope that letters recently appearing in this column are not indicative of the reasoning powers of McGill athletes. All of these "Comments on Comments" are really poor attempts at hiding the evident truth. If McGill athletes had valuable scholarships to protect, you can be sure that those people would not be so swift to come to the defence of "Harry's Hirelings". Since no premium is placed on winning here at McGill, what reason should a group of athletes have to vote no confidence to their coach? With nothing but silly old self pride at stake, there isn't an athlete at the university with the intestinal fortitude to look the coach straight in the eye and tell him that he doesn't know what it's all about! Please, let's not confuse the issue with votes of confidence and the like!

Prof. Outlines Society's Evaluation Of Education

"How do members of society value the educational enterprises? As a baby-sitting service, as a preparation for life, as a source of power of nature, and, finally, as the thing that will make it possible for us to beat the Russians."

Prof. A. McKinnon of the Philosophy Department made this statement last night when he spoke on "Intelligence in an Anti-Intellectual Society". The address was the first in a series of six sponsored by the Student Christian Movement.

STUDENT STATUS

Prof. McKinnon started by speaking of the Canadian census taker as the central figure in a private nightmare. He fills in pieces of paper which do not recognize that being a student is a valid occupation. This means, McKinnon said, that we may place a certain value on students, but we cannot accept them in our society on their own terms.

The professor then compared the amount of space devoted in our newspapers to the arts and other humanitarian pursuits to that devoted to financial and industrial concerns. He added, "The quest of the intellect, the work of the artist, are valued not as part of the realistic world, but as a polite and flattering veneer for the real world."

POPULAR ATTITUDE

The popular attitude toward education in the universities, according to the lecturer, is one of preparation for life. Many young women come to university hoping to find a suitable mate; while the average college male seeks future business contacts among his fraternity brothers.

The Church is partially at fault for society's view on education, education being irrelevant to salvation, because the Church believes "Faith will lead you where reason cannot."

Professor McKinnon concluded by offering some "logically correct" justifications of a university education. They are: "To know yourself, to become free, to comprehend the Real, and to know God."

The next five lectures in the series will be on the "Fallacies in Western Society".

Revue Opens Tomorrow Supported By "SExtet"

"God It Made", the Red and White Revue's satire on sex in advertising, opens tomorrow night at Moyses Hall. Prominent in the show is a group of six performers appropriately named the "SExtet".

Liane Marshall held leading roles in the two previous revues, "Wry and Ginger" and "Reign or Shine". She is the only member of the Red and White troupe to have sung in Aklavik, where she entertained troops a couple of summers ago.

Pierre Perron has also been connected with past revues. Known primarily as a dancer, he is also a singer in this year's revue. A fourth year music student, he has played in every revue back to "My Fur Lady".

Angela De-Vreeze has had acting experience with the Avon Players and has taken ballet and folk-dancing for several years. She is a first year science student.

Dan Baran, an artsman, is president of the Player's Club this year and has been active in theatre work since he came to McGill four years ago.

Randy Davies, a veteran of many musical comedies, is the third male member of the sextet. He was a lead in the "I Love Electra" presentation last fall.

Shirley Harrison is another veteran performer. She has done T.V. work and is active in the Player's Club.

6 Finalists Named For Reford Cup

Six finalists were chosen yesterday from among the fifteen contestants in the preliminaries for the Reford Cup.

Included are Irwin Cotler, B.A. 3, J. J. Elkin, B.A. 3, and S. Glouberman, B. Eng. 1. Also named were Jim Khazzam, B.A. 1, Andrew Roman, B.Sc. 1, and Stuart Smith, Med. 2. The names of the finalists are not given in any official order.

The official date for the finals will be announced shortly.

Creative Writing Contest Opened

Two Chester McNaughton prizes for creative writing, one of $50 and the other of $30, are offered annually in a competition for the best piece of creative writing in English submitted by an undergraduate student of the University.

The work may be in prose or verse, and may be fiction, drama or essay. The judges will not read untidy manuscripts or newspaper clippings.

Compositions that have appeared in print are not ineligible provided that they have been published since March 1, 1959. Entries that win prizes or honourable mention will be retained by the University and filed in the Redpath Library.

No candidate may submit more than two entries.

The competition is restricted to those students who have not previously won the First Prize.

The judges are appointed by the University Scholarships Committee which also decides all questions concerning eligibility.

Compositions must be typed or printed and must reach the Registrar on or before March 1.

More Whistles or More Blood?

by EARL SANDY

Scattered throughout hockey rulebooks are various references to the fact that various facial injuries to a player because of high sticking, cross checking, etc. are punishable by a major penalty.

After watching Intercollegiate hockey games for the past few weeks, it is obvious that Intercollegiate hockey referees aren't too sure of this rule, and a few other rules too.

Injuries have become an integral part of hockey. They are unpleasant for the players concerned. Stray pucks and sticks can cause nasty damage when they rip unguarded flesh. It is for this reason mainly that rules have been set up to try and minimize unnecessary harm from sticks being wielded like battle axes.

A cut across the bridge of the nose, or lip, or eyebrow cannot be caused by a stick with its blade on the ice. It must be caused by a stick over a player's shoulder (high-sticking or cross checking). Both these infractions call for a two minute penalty. The drawing of blood, automatically calls for a five-minute penalty.

It appears that Intercollegiate referees are unaware of this. Let us note briefly the following occurrences during McGill hockey games. Two weeks ago, a player was stickhandling at centre ice. A U of M player streaked across the ice and checked the player who came out of the tussle with a cut eye.

AD INFINITUM

Against the U of M last week: Paul McDonald was carrying the puck over the blue line while a Carabin hacked at him with his stick. The net result was that the puck went free and McDonald had to have several stitches taken in his upper lip.

Against Toronto: Mike Richards and a Toronto player collided. Seven stitches for Richards on his nose. Also against Toronto: Gordie Merritt dumped by a Varsity player. Merritt got up with blood streaming from his nose. All of the above infractions would have brought a major penalty for the offending player if the referees had been competent.

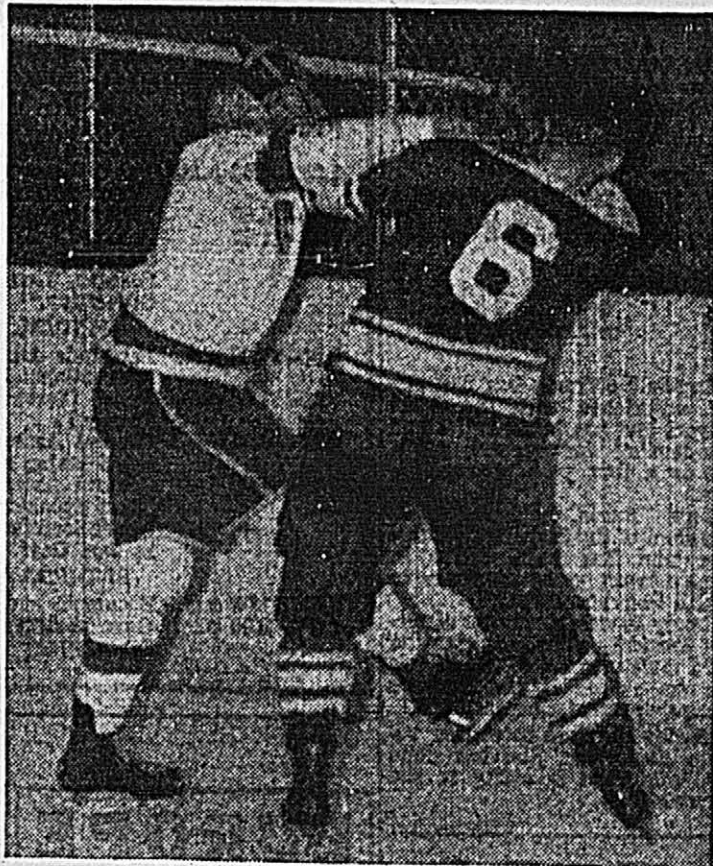

Again in the U of M game: Steve Molson carried the puck across the blue line and made a pass. The defenceman stuck out a knee and Molson was through for the game.

In the Toronto game: John McLernon and a Varsity player went up against the wire screen and the Toronto player's elbow hammered McLernon's head into the screen with the regularity and force of a triphammer, raising a nice lump on John's forehead. No penalties, of course.

Next time McLernon was on the ice a Varsity player slammed him into the boards and McLernon came out swinging. Who could blame him?

ACTION NEEDED

If the referees don't start clamping down, someone is going to be badly hurt, maybe lose an eye. Hockey teams don't want to play with a man advantage for five minutes if it is because one of their teammates has had to have some sewing done on his face. It is the referees' job to keep sticks down and his job to give penalties when they go up and cut someone. The Intercollegiate referees are not doing this and therefore are not doing their job properly.

Another rule which the referees call infrequently and haphazardly is the deliberate offside rule. They probably aren't sure about this one either. Then there is the deliberate falling on the puck rule. That is also non-existent in the minds of officials. And so into the night.

Come to the NWS next week and see the greatest show on ice, see the dancing elephants and diving seals, see the performing clowns, thrill to the...

Badminton Team Takes 2nd Place

The McGill Badminton Team, sparked by good singles and doubles play, placed second in the Intercollegiate Badminton Competition at Western on Friday and Saturday. The final results were Toronto 24, McGill 16, Queens 11, Western 5 and Assumption 4.

John Cheng of McGill beat Queens 17-15, 18-14, and Western 17-14, 15-8, and lost to Toronto 15-6, 15-2, and Assumption. Albert Rodrigues won 2 and lost 2, Tom Bell won 3 and lost 1, and Keith Bernard won 3 and lost 1.

In the doubles play, the first team of Cheng and Rodrigues beat Western 15-5, 15-9, Queens 15-3, 18-5 and Assumption 15-11, 15-9. They lost to Toronto 15-3 and 15-3. The second team of Bell and Bernard beat Western 15-9, 15-3; Queens 15-6, 15-3; and Assumption 15-3, 15-5. The second team also lost to Toronto 15-11, and 15-5.

Redmen At Queen's

The McGill Redmen travel to Queen's today to face off against the Golden Gaels in a four point crucial encounter. The Red and White have to register a victory in this contest to remain in first division. To date, the squad has five points, three short of the third place team, Queen's. A victory will boost their total to nine and displace the Gaels. In the league standings, Toronto has a grip on second place with ten points, six behind the league-leading Laval U.

Redmen Down U of M

by PHIL SINGER

The McGill Redmen got back on the winning track last night by soundly trouncing the University of Montreal Carabins 80-39 in a Montreal Basketball League fixture. The game was marked by a dull first half that saw the Redmen take the lead that they were never to lose.

John Moore drew first blood and later continued in fine form to score a total of 22 points, high man on the floor. He made them count from all over the court, connecting for ten field goals and two free shots.

Another standout for the Red and White was Tom Richards. The tall, lean centre chalked up 14 points and also played well defensively. Moose Limonchik and Ben Shore both turned in fine performances, netting 13 and 11 points respectively.

SLOW START

Both teams started slowly, missing golden opportunities. The U of M caught up with the Redmen to knot the score at 6-6, but from there the McGills poured it on and had a 33-10 lead at the half.

In the second stanza the Carabins opened up the contest, but to no avail. The Redmen took the cue and extended their lead. They moved quickly and surely, taking a 43 point advantage at the opening of the third quarter, but slowed down as the game neared completion.

It was strictly a team effort on the part of the Redmen. All nine men contributed to the cause offensively and defensively. An unusual feature of the game was the fact that the McGill squad had no players drawing more than three fouls.

McGill Scoring: Richards 14; Moore 22; Limonchik 13; Ulrich 6; Murdoch 2; Mieschowsky 2; Boyd 8; Shore 11; Barkovsky 2.

In the Junior contest, the Red and White beat the U of M 57-41.

Athletics Night II On Saturday

Saturday night, McGill athletics will be on display for the second time this year as Athletics Night 2 takes place at the Currie Gym. The highlight of the proceedings, starting at 8 pm will be a water-show featuring competitive and comical diving. Starring will be Pauline McCullough and Dan Makie, both of whom are widely recognized divers in this province. There will also be a demonstration of Synchronized Swimming as well as a Water Polo game. The teams will consist of McGill's best Poloists.

On the basketball courts, the Redmen will take on the Toronto Blues. The McGill Wrestlers will be featured in an intercollegiate match against the matmen from Queen's.

To round out the evening, there will be dancing to the orchestra of Mike Dodman. It may be noted that those attending the Red and White's Saturday showing can attend the dancing after the show ends.
